WELCOME TO BEING HOME

Introducing BEING Home, an online program for artists with developmental disabilities. Connect with a community of people like you, who love art and want to stay creative while staying home. You'll love all the wonderful things about BEING Home.

"Being a good artist is in yourself. When you express that to other people with your art, then we know what we can do."

-Analisa Kiskis

What is BEING Home?

BEING Home is an online program for artists with developmental disabilities.

HOW DOES IT WORK?

GROUP CHATS

Group Chats are at the core of the online program. Once a week, you'll join other creative people like you in a group Zoom chat hosted by BEING Studio facilitators. You can share what you've been working on, participate in creative activities, or just sit back and enjoy virtual visits from guest artists. These chats are two hours long, and they're a great way to meet new people and share your creativity.

“People can take their time opening up. Everyone opens up at a different pace.”

-Caroline Joannis

Art Prompts

Collage by Christine Hammond

When you sign up for BEING Home, you'll receive regular emails from us with prompts to inspire you to make something new. During the video chats you can share these ideas on topics like landscape art, portraiture, art history, art from today, and more.

WORKSHOPS

Workshops are offered in addition to the regularly scheduled video chats. Participate in virtual sketching tours and learn new skills from visiting artists like musicians, actors, writers, dancers, museum professionals and more! We're always adding new workshops in different artforms so you get to participate in lots of different experiences.

SHARE YOUR WORK

You can choose to send us images of what you're working on and we'll share them with the group during the video chats.
